Dow closes more than 300 points higher, Fed rate decision; ASX to rise

 Global markets. Stocks rose Tuesday as the Federal Reserve kicked off its two-day policy meeting. Traders also kept an eye on Nvidia following key announcements from the tech giant.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average gained 320.33 points, or 0.83%, to close at 39,110.76. The 30-stock benchmark registered its best day since Feb. 22. The S&P 500 gained 0.56% to close at 5,178.51 for a fresh record. Meanwhile, the Nasdaq Composite advanced 0.39% to end at 16,166.79.

The central bank is expected to keep rates unchanged Wednesday. However, a recent slate of worrying inflation reports has investors concerned that the central bank could signal interest rates will remain higher for longer than expected.

Super Micro Computer, a primary vendor for building out Nvidia's Al servers, dropped about 9% on news of a share offering. Shares have ripped 220% higher this year on Al enthusiasm, leading the stock to be added to the S&P 500 on Monday. In another sign that the recent bull run could be slowing down, bitcoin proxy MicroStrategy dropped 5.7%. The stock has more than doubled in 2024 as bitcoin surged to record highs.

According to Sam Stovall, chief investment strategist at CFRA Research, a "healthy" market digestion after the recent rally will either happen later than investors expect or be deeper than they anticipate.
