Dow closes 300pts lower from record; Nvidia drags down Nasdaq; ASX to fall

 Global markets. Stocks tumbled Tuesday, taking a breather from their rally, as traders sifted through the latest corporate earnings reports.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average lost 324.80 points, or 0.75%, closing at 42,740.42. The 30-stock average touched a fresh intraday record before sliding. The S&P 500 slipped 0.76% to end at 5,815.26, and the Nasdaq Composite fell 1.01% to 18,315.59.

ASML tanked 16% as chipmakers took a dive. The company's CEO warned of "cautiousness" among customers and said a "recovery is more gradual than previously expected." Nvidia and AMD shed 4.7% and 5.2%, respectively. The VanEck Semiconductor ETF (SMH) dropped 5.4% for its worst day since Sept. 3.

Further, UnitedHealth slid 8.1% after the company trimmed its full-year earnings outlook. The insurer's decline weighed on the 30-stock Dow.

Wall Street is coming off a winning session that propelled the S&P 500 and Dow to all-time highs. Notably, the Dow added more than 200 points to finish above the 43,000 mark for the first time.

Despite Tuesday's declines, the three major averages are higher on the month and seem on track to overcome a historically volatile season. But Terry Sandven, chief equity strategist at U.S. Bank Wealth Management, says that stocks aren't out of the woods just yet.
